Google Tasks in Gmail

Use Google Tasks to keep track of the things you need to do. You can create lists of items, set due dates and notes, and even add Gmail messages directly to Tasks.

Using Google Tasks in Gmail

Click the down arrow next to Gmail in the top left corner of your Gmail page, then choose Tasks.

To enter tasks, click in the Tasks window and start typing. Once you've typed in a task, press 'Enter' to create another task, or use the + button at the bottom of your list.

Here are some of the options available in Google Tasks:

- Create a task about a Gmail message using the keyboard shortcut Shift + T, or by choosing Add to Tasks from the More menu above your Gmail conversation.
- Switch between existing lists or create new ones using the List icon in the bottom right corner.
- Create "subtasks" by using Tab to indent them, and Shift + Tab to move them back.
- Move tasks by grabbing them to the left of the check mark and dragging them up and down.
- Add new tasks to the middle of a list by clicking at the beginning or end of an existing task and pressing Enter.
- Check off Tasks when you're done, and use Actions > Clear completed to hide them. Don't worry, you can still view them later!
- Print your tasks by clicking Actions and selecting Print task list.

Gmail Settings - Labels

Labels are functionally very similar to folders. Gmail uses the Archive function to move emails out of the Inbox to the All Mail folder. Once an email has had a label applied to it and has been archived, the label essentially functions as a folder, which can be accessed from the left side of your Gmail home screen. You can organize labels in the same way that you can organize folders; by reorganizing them and nesting them within each other.

Labels can also be applied to email messages while still in the Inbox, in which case, they will have both the inbox label and the other label you chose.

An advantage to labels is that multiple labels can be applied to email messages, which can be a useful organizational tool, and searching within labels allows for more efficient searching than searching the entire Inbox.
